

November 17, 2020

Fresh Express has announced a cautionary recall of their Caesar Supreme 10.5 oz salad kit on specific to a November 8 use-by date. As seen below in the letter from Fresh Express, Four Seasons Produce has not received any of the recalled product.

November 16, 2020

Dear Valued Customer:

Fresh Express is conducting a precautionary recall of a limited quantity of expired Fresh Express Kit Caesar Supreme, 10.5 oz. size, with Product Code S296, UPC Code 0 71279 30104 4 and an already expired Use-By Date of November 8.

Our records indicate that you DID NOT receive any of the recalled product.

The recall is necessitated by a singled random sample test that yielded a positive result for E. coli 026 and about which we learned late-day on Saturday, November 14. No illnesses are reported, and no other Fresh Express products are subject to recall at this time.

A thorough review of our preventive controls and aggressive romaine lettuce food safety practices did not reveal any deviations or the presence of any pathogens. None-the-less, and even though the product is now eight-plus (8+) days past the expiration date, a recall is warranted in order to protect public health in the unlikely event the recalled product is still on store shelves o, in inventories or in consumers' homes.

If you have any questions, please contact your customer service representative.

Sincerely,

Fresh Express